Are you looking for a research internship at the Faculty of Psychology?

Are you interested in how stress affects our brains and social behaviour?

The SCAN-Unit is looking for bachelor and master's students to assist with a research project investigating how stress impacts our interactions with others.

Interns will gain experience of conducting neuroscience studies within a thriving and supportive research environment.

Students will be expected to commit 10-12 hours per week for at least 12 weeks starting in January or February 2019.

Applicants should be highly motivated, well-organised, and fluent German speakers.

If you are interested, please email paul.forbes@univie.ac.at with your CV and a brief outline of why you would like to be involved in this project (in English or German).